DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 14, 17 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Litzkow et al. (US 4,671,114).

Regarding claim 14: Litzkow et al. disclose an acoustic insect detection comprising detection member having a proximal and distal end, said proximal end contacting a diaphragm (1) and said distal end be configured to be inserted into a potential infestation site without damaging the structure; a means to mechanically amplify the sound produced by said diaphragm; and a means to receive airborne sound and to convert said sound to an electrical signal (col. 2, lines 7-26).

Regarding claim 17: Litzkow et al. disclose the means to mechanically amplify the sound is a stethoscope (col. 2, line 58).

Regarding claim 18: Litzkow et al. disclose the means to receive airborne sound and to convert said sound to an electrical signal is a microphone (5)(col. 2, line 22).

Claims 26-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Vick et al. (US 5,005,416).

Regarding claim 26: Vick et al. disclose an insect detection system comprising an acoustic detector for detecting termites in a structure and transmitting data collected by the sensors to a central operations center (53) for inclusion in a central database of termite data and information (col. 8, lines 37-63).

Regarding claim 27: Vick et al. disclose affixing the sensor to a structure, communication the signal to a computing device (53) for comparing/processing of insect infestation (col. 8, lines 37-63).

Regarding claim 29: Vick et al. disclose the computing device is a computer (53) at a remote site is inherently a remote central processor.

Regarding claim 30: Vick et al. disclose the hand held device (60) (Fig. 10).

Regarding claim 31: Vick et al. disclose detection of infesting insects (abstract); thus, infesting insects are termites.

Regarding claim 32: Vick et al. disclose the control signal stored in the computing device is modified to include the detected signals (Fig. 7; col. 7, lines 30-50).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 15, 16 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Litzkow et al. (US 4,671,114).

Regarding claims 15, 16 and 19: Litzkow et al. does not disclose the detection member is a probe or a hypodermic needle; however, one of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that it is obvious to disclose the sound detector in other forms, besides the microphone or a stethoscope, to detect sound.

Claim 28 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vick et al. (US 5,005,416). Vick et al. does not disclose the vibration signals are between 0-.5 and three milliseconds in length; however, it is merely that the length of time varies with different systems and an obvious preference signal to indicate a level of insect infestations.

Response to Amendment

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 14-19 and 26-32 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
